

ELKS MAKE A START

Our Antlered Hosts to the Number of One Hundred

GO TO THE GRAND LODGE

Ben Fletcher Blazes the Way Over the P. O. & M. Highway—The Road as Early Morning.

Andy Shaffer headed the procession. And there were ninety-nine like him.

The party was in charge of a big man with a shaven face and immaculate white shirt that glistened in the morning sunlight like a new tin pail at milking time. The big man was in charge of a little man who red nose and cheeks like the orient and the accident, to the south and the north. The little man was a straw hat and his new spring trousers were delicately crossed fore and aft.

The ninety and nine were not the sheep that were within the sheep fold, and in no danger of going astray. Hardly. Neither was the little man the lost sheep that is of more value to the shepherd than the ninety and nine that never go astray. Not to any great extent. The ninety and nine were members of Daisy Lodge of Elks and were on their way to Detroit to attend the annual national round up of the Cervi Canadensis, which is the Latin name for 'em. The little man with the porcine mustache was Ben Fletcher, general passenger agent for the D. G. H. & M. road. Mr. Fletcher came to Grand Rapids to see that the boys arrived in Detroit all right and that none of them were side tracked at Pontiac or Birmingham. The fat man who was acting as general assistant chaperone was John E. Killean, the boy wonder of Daisy lodge, and the biggest Elk of his age at ever attended a social session. "Doug" was there. "Doug" and his fiddle both. No gathering of Elks is ever complete without "Doug" and "Doug" is never complete without the fiddle.

Early in the Morning.
It was about 6:30 in the morning when Fletcher finally got the entire herd corralled. John Killean makes a practice of not getting up until 9:30 in the morning, and his eyes looked like the convex optics of a broiled lobster. There were others who looked lobsterish than he; but they weren't. It was a little too early for the boys to make any particular demonstration of all round pent up enthusiasm, but they carried the look of men that were going to win in the prize drill or break something square in two. The D. G. H. & M. road had provided one baggage car and three coaches for the accommodation of Daisy lodge. The first coach was, of course, to ride in and the baggage car contained palm leaf fans and other dead sure heat preventors. At half past 6 the cars were loaded, but the Elks were not. Ben Fletcher waved his hand and told the engineer to let 'em go. But the over-zealous knight of the throttle mistook Ben's gesture for a danger signal and sent the fireman back to flag. Finally every thing was adjusted to the satisfaction of everybody. "Doug" touched off a salute of beer bottles, the conductor yelled "All aboard," and the members of Daisy Lodge No. 33 and the officers of the Supreme Grand Lodge of Antlers and the past exalted connoisseurs of a good thing were on their way to Detroit, from whence they are liable to return most any time.

DETROIT, Mich., June 20.—About 7,000 members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks have assembled here from all parts of the country to attend the seventh annual reunion of their order. The city presents a gala appearance, almost every building being appropriately decorated with flags and bunting. From early morning until late at night for the past few days the streets have resounded with the music of marching bands and the festivities of visiting Elks. Today opened up hot and dusty, thermometers being not far from 90 in the shade. At 10 o'clock the grand lodge met and will continue its session in accordance with the demands of business. In all about 1,400 persons are expected to attend the grand lodge, whose sessions are held behind closed doors. E. R. Hay of Washington, grand exalted ruler, called the meeting to order.

Among the important things to come before the order will be the Elks' annexation of Canada. The order being a purely American one, no authority exists for the organization of lodges except in the territory of the United States. The proposition will be strongly opposed on sentimental grounds, and it is impossible to predict the outcome. A thorough revision of the ritual, in which, however, the distinctive features of the secret work in the past will be retained, will also be considered and officers for the ensuing year will be elected. For the first time in three years a New York lodge has sent delegates to the grand lodge meeting. The question of granting them all admission will be settled early in the session, it is thought. Grand Secretary Allan G. Meyer of Cincinnati is here with a big fight on his hands to retain his office, as there are several others after it.

This afternoon was taken up with the annual parade of the order. The Louisville lodge was awarded the handsome silk banner offered for the delegation presenting the best appearance. This evening a grand complimentary concert and ball was tendered to the delegates by the Louisville lodge at the light infantry armory. Tomorrow the visiting Elks will spend the day at Mt. Clemons, returning to the city in the evening.

At the evening session of the Grand Lodge, Grand Exalted Ruler Hay read his annual address, which was very voluminous and occupied over an hour in reading. New York lodge, No. 1, which was suspended three years ago for disobedience of laws, was reinstated back into the fold, thus settling a matter which has troubled the order for a long time. The action of the Cleveland lodge in expelling Arthur Moreland, formerly grand secretary of the order, was rescinded and Mr. Moreland reinstated in the organization. The report of other officers of the grand lodge were read and the session adjourned.

DOES THE BABY ACT.

The Press Praises Ignorance and Admires the Truth.

From—Really this is a very bad man. I have been a distinguished champion of labor for a long time. I have defended the cause of organized labor without giving credit to prove that I am a friend to the horny handed son of toil, and here I am in a horrible stew with my office covered with "rat" backbones. What shall I do?

Union Man—Tell the truth.
Press—But I am not an angel.
Union Man—Make a bluff at it. Say that you are in no wise responsible; that you had nothing whatever to do with the contract. That you had no business on the road. That the work is something with which you have nothing to do.

Press—But I have said it.
Union Man—Well, then, say you are a nervous, honest newspaper.
That before the work was begun with which you had nothing whatever to do and which was none of your business, you went to the owner and told him that he must employ union labor or none at all. Of course, a man who is about to repair a building in which I am a tenant, whom he should employ and what he should pay is so ridiculous I can't believe it myself.

Press—But I have already said that.
Union Man—Doesn't anybody believe it?

Press—My Waterloo street patrons took it in—but, honest now, on the side, it was too transparent for intelligent persons. They saw through it in a minute. The idea that I would assume to dictate to a man who is about to repair a building in which I am a tenant, whom he should employ and what he should pay is so ridiculous I can't believe it myself.

Union Man—Then it didn't wash?
Press—No. That's what hurts. How can I fix it up?

Union Man (now thoroughly disgusted with the trucking acrobatics of the Press)—Play the baby act.
Press—I did that last night. I printed an alleged fac-simile of an alleged union card. It bore no name and no signature. I told my Waterloo street patrons that such a card was presented to me by a workman and that I—who am the champion of organized labor—was deceived by it and believed that notwithstanding it contained no name and no signature it was a bona fide union card. O, more! You see, I went up on the roof where I had no business to go and asked the warden if he were a union man. He promptly replied: "Yes, sir; and no non-union man can work with me." Although it was none of my business, notwithstanding I had run a cut claiming the building was mine and mine only, which it was not, in proof of his assertion he produced a red card neatly printed, reading as follows:

NO. 19. GRAND RAPIDS, JUNE 1, 1933.
BECKLAYSERS AND STONEMASONS' LOCAL UNION, No. 1.
SIX MONTHS' WORKING CARD.
Mr. _____ is hereby permitted to work with all members of this Union during the time herein stated.

TO HIS LONG HOME

Remains of Gen. H. F. Hastings Borne to the Grave.

SERVICES HELD AT THE HOUSE

Knight of Pythias and Knights Templar Attend the Obsequies in Baltimore—Many Present.

The funeral of Brigadier General Henry F. Hastings was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the family residence, No. 115 Jefferson avenue. The remains were encased in a richly ornamented casket, covered with dark gray broadcloth, which was placed in the reception room and a profuse collection of flowers. A half dozen huge floral pieces contributed by the Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias, Daughters of the Empire, Knights Templars, the Wholesale Grocers' association and friends of the family of the deceased, were arranged in the vicinity of the casket. On the casket rested the deceased's name and plumed hat worn when on dress parade with the Knights of Pythias, a large picture of the general in uniform and on an easel surrounded with a heavy wreath of roses. The remains were viewed by hundreds of the friends and neighbors of the deceased and members of the order of which he was a member. The Knights of Pythias and Knights Templars attended the services in full dress uniform but only a small number of them were able to gain admission to the residence during the services. Either side of the street was lined with carriages for a distance of several blocks from the residence.

Services at the House.

The services at the house were in charge of the Rev. Dr. Fair of St. Mark's Episcopal church and the Rev. Dr. Fluhrer of All Souls Universalists church. The services were opened with a duet by Mrs. Nichols and Miss Buck, the hymn "O Morning Land" being impressively rendered without the aid of instrumental accompaniment. The Rev. Dr. Fair then read the Episcopal order for the burial of the dead and the Rev. Dr. Fluhrer followed with a brief eulogy on the life and character of his deceased friend. He referred to his association with the commandery in pleasing terms. He said the Knights Templars had known him and he had endeavored himself to the order by his many virtues. In business the deceased had been successful, as the term is used by men, and had also met reverses by sickness, with which he had been afflicted for several years. At the close of Dr. Fluhrer's remarks a prayer was offered by Dr. Fair, and the duet rendered "O Heavenly Solitude Thought." The remains were borne into the hearse by the following bearers, chosen from the Knights of Pythias: Maj. H. D. C. Van Amman, city; Col. W. H. Loomis, city; Col. C. O. Jensen, Greenville; Col. W. J. Gage, Saginaw; Col. A. Robinson, city; Col. M. S. Curtis, Battle Creek; Col. M. A. Peterson, Lansing; and Maj. John Smith, Detroit. The interment was made in the Valley City cemetery where the services were conducted by the order of Knights Templar. Notwithstanding the rain the remains were followed to their last resting place by a long procession of sorrowing friends. The bearers at the cemetery were: Dr. S. A. Wootter, Judge A. C. Addit, L. M. McRath, J. Pring, L. M. Cary and, W. L. Freeman. A Bible with Mr. Wootter at the grave by the duet that rendered the music at the house.
